Social Impact through Data

CARPE DATUM

Aadhar policy changes, what does it mean for every Indian?

Outline India scrutinizes government policies and implementations with diligence.

We are approaching the policy changes to the Aadhar with same care we always apply to all our research. This internally funded investigation will gauge and evaluate the public's perceptions on the controversial policy changes to the Aadhar.

The survey that our team created will allow for an in-depth exploration on whether the Aadhar has enhanced access to services and benefits or conversely, if it is perceived to infringe on individual privacy. Regardless of the outcome, the public's voice will be heard and Outline India will be the medium for it.
