Hi Ankeshita,

From cotton fields in six states to classrooms in Uttar Pradesh, our work this season has been as grounded as ever - and growing. We've been on the ground conducting soil health assessments with farming communities, running baseline studies on adolescent health, and taking India's field research story to the global stage at the Philanthropy Asia Summit in Singapore. Closer to home, we headed to NLSIU Bengaluru for a conversation on what field work in India truly looks like - and we've opened a new cohort for the OI Data Conscious Badge for organisations ready to put responsible data at the heart of their work.

Philanthropy Asia Summit 2026

Outline India was at the Philanthropy Asia Summit 2026 (18–21 May, Singapore) - one of Asia's most important gatherings of philanthropic leaders, impact investors, and changemakers. This year's summit spotlighted Asian-led innovations with global potential, with a focus on inclusive development, technology, and cross-sector collaboration. It was exactly the conversation we wanted to be part of - and we're glad we were. If you missed us there and want to connect on our field research across 95,000+ villages in India, our work in South and Southeast Asia, or potential collaborations, reach out to us at contact@outlineindia.com
